JUST FOR TODAY

Read by Shannon Garner

Just for today we will try to live through the next 24 hours and not expect to get over Jaiden’s death, but instead learn to live with it, just one day at a time.

Just for today we will remember our Jaiden’s life, not just his death, and bask in the comfort of all those treasured days and moments we all share.

Just for today we will smile no matter how much we hurt on the inside for maybe if we smile, our hearts will soften and we will begin to heal.

Just for today we will reach out to comfort a relative or friend of Jaiden for they are hurting too, and perhaps we can help each other.

Just for today we will free ourselves from our self-inflicted burden of guilt for deep in our hearts we know if there was anything in this world we could have done to save Jaiden from passing, we would have done it.

Just for today we will honour Jaiden's memory by doing something with another child because we know that would make Jaiden so very proud.

Just for today we will offer our hands in friendship to another bereaved parent for we know how they fell.

Just for today when our hearts feel like breaking, we will stop and remember that grief is the price we pay for loving and the only reason we hurt is because we had the privilege of loving so much...

Just for today we will not compare ourselves with others. We are fortunate to be who we are and have had Jaiden for as long as we did.

Just for today we will allow ourselves to be happy, for we know we are not deserting Jaiden by living on.

Just for today we will accept that we did not die when our child did, our life did go on, and we are the only ones who can make that life worthwhile once more...

THE LORD’S PRAYER

Our Father, who art in heaven,
hallowed be thy name; thy kingdom come;
thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.

Give us this day our daily bread;
and forgive us our trespasses
as we forgive those who trespass against us;
and lead us not into temptation,
but deliver us from evil.

For thine is the kingdom
The power, and the glory,
For ever and ever.

Amen.
