

TL;DR

WCC LP is an Indigenous-led language centre providing free resources, lessons, and digital tools to support strong, supported, and flourishing languages. Our work is guided by community, rooted in respect, and focused on healing, belonging, and future generations.

Who We Are

The WCC Language Program is an Indigenous-led language centre based in Condobolin, NSW. We are funded by the Indigenous Languages & Arts program, and supported by additional entities, organisational partners, and commercial allies.

What We Do

Provide all language resources free to community members, removing barriers to access. Deliver school and community lessons, fluency programs, and on-Country learning. Develop dictionaries, apps, games, and digital tools to support language learning. Create physical resources - books, signage, diaries, and classroom materials. Mentor and train facilitators, teachers, and artists to embed language into everyday life. Walk alongside communities, guided by their authority and vision.

Our Goals

Restore intergenerational transmission of language and culture.
Ensure community control and ownership of resources.
Build confidence in speaking, teaching, and living through language.
Extend access for off-Country families and schools via digital innovation.
Contribute to national and global Indigenous language sustainability.

Our Philosophy

Language is identity. Revitalising language is an act of healing, sovereignty, and future-building. Every word spoken connects us to ancestors and strengthens our children's sense of belonging. We believe in collaboration, respect, and innovation that honours cultural integrity.
